Dana Haven, State Assayer and Chemist for the state of Massachusetts says: "I commenced the investigation with doubts about your Enameled Pipe, but at the severe tests which I have employed it, I am free to say that it is perfectly harmless, and possesses all the qualities desirable in the properties of most importance in water pipes."

Extra Bargains at!

"WE THANK THEE, JEW," FOR THESE WORDS.

IT WAS NOT ALWAYS THUS YOU WERE WONT TO SPEAK.

A brief time ago it was "everything for us," nothing for the rest Now their haughty crest is lowered and their banner trailing in the dust. They are glad to cry for quarter and ask only "equal rights to all." This we have fully conceded to them throughout. The equal rights of all to buy GOOD GOODS AT LOW PRICES, undeterred by any shallow pretensions of goods sold "without profit," or 50 per cent. lower than other firms could afford

BUT THE END IS NOT YET.

Here is another bubble yet to be punctured. They come forward now with a wonderful Plan, by which all are to be made happy and the old system of close clothing business at once abolished. And what, think you, is this "Plan" which, in so brief a time, is to accomplish so much? Why, simply, that people are to pay "cash for their goods!" Brilliant discovery! Such mind are not adapted to the latitude of Bangor. 407 EAST, 407 NORTH, 407 WEST.

In the "Cash Bazar" of their latest prostitution and re-rather matriculate—cry of distress! Is it not sublime to see them thus attempt to shroud the flimsy fabric of your arguments without the aid of an Eagle Lawyer, Pettifogging or otherwise.

Facts, We Fancy.

They say "our travelling agent formerly sold goods at wholesale to the merchants of Bangor." An unfortunate reminiscence. We are told that an agent for that house, to an experimental trip, sold one bill and one only, in this city, and that was returned, as the goods were so poor they couldn't be sold. We are also informed that the agent retired indignant from the field after a brief trial, stating that it was "no use for him to travel with that trash in the State of Maine. That they wanted good goods down there." So it appears that they have abandoned the idea of selling good goods in Maine, and are now endeavoring to put them off upon the less experienced retail trade, but they are obliged to mix New York low clothing with their own in order to make even that successful. This speaks for itself as to the quality of their goods.

THE DEMOCRATIC SPEAKER.

Hon Michael C. Kerr, of Indiana, who has just been placed in the chair occupied with such distinguished ability during three successive Congresses by Hon. James G Blaine of this state is about forty-nine years of age, was born near Titusville Pa March 15, 1827, was chiefly self-educated, but attended several academies while teaching school, studied law in the University of Louisville and afterwards practiced law in New Albany, Indiana He said he was elected to Congress and has been returned to each election since, except for the 43d Congress He was a bitter opponent of measures for carrying on the war to suppress the rebellion and interposed the old State Rights doctrines in opposition to the reconstruction measures of the Government His personal integrity is not to be questioned and he is regarded as a man of fair abilities. It is thought that his physical stamina will prove inadequate to the harrassing requirements of the Speakership, for which he has so much Republican admiration as a parliamentarian and temperament This is what the New York Herald says of the new Democratic speaker?

From the very beginning Mr Kerr has been a pronounced Bourbon of the Democratic Bourbons. He represents that element in their Congressional ranch at the beginning of the worst reactionary period in the party history. He occupied a similar Buchanan-like relation to Speakership which made Cockerill and Voorhees and other public managers of the party's policy which made Cockerill and Voorhees and other public managers of the party's policy which made Cockerill and Voorhees and other public managers of the party's policy

FRIAR ANSELMO.

BY HORATIO ALGER, JR.

Friar Anselmo (God's grace may he win!)
Counted his sins and day's deadly din,

Which being done he drew back, self-abhorred,
From the relenting presence of the Lord.

And kneeling down, besought, with bitter cry,
That he might die,

And then he knelt, and when the morning broke,
In patience still he waits death's fatal stroke.

When all at once a cry of sharp distress
Arrested Anselmo through his wretchedness,

And looking from the convent window high,
He saw a wounded traveller gasping lie

In ruddy wreath, who, terrified and stricken sore,
Had crawled for aid into the convent door.

Then in a hurry with deep compassion stirred,
While the poor wretch's groans for help were heard

[illegible] hands, and touched with love divine,
[illegible] wounds, and poured in oil and wine

[illegible] for strength raised for all his needs,—
[illegible] manifold of noble deeds.

[illegible] Joseph passed seven days. At length
The false murderer gained his wasted strength

[illegible] grateful thanks he left the convent walls,
[illegible] again on death Anselmo calls

When lo! he sees I was filled with sudden light,
[illegible] the will he saw an angel write.

An angel in whose likeness he could trace
[illegible] of a brother (he traveller's form and face).

[illegible] Anselmo, though the sin be great,
[illegible] for this thou may et expiate

[illegible] shalt be washed white again
[illegible] in thy fellowmen

[illegible] shalt be numbered in God above,
[illegible] heartfelt prayers of love

Merely [illegible] pass, but after prayer,
[illegible] thou shalt find peace and fair

[illegible] good deeds to fulfill

WINTER PRODUCTION OF EGGS.

The following article from B. P. J. of the Country Gentleman is timely [illegible] nearly everything from his pen is eminently sensible.

[illegible] now bringing a good price [illegible] from 18 to 30 cents a dozen, a price [illegible] likely to advance from this time [illegible] Neither is [illegible] so that 22 to 30 [illegible] for the West and 4 cents more for the [illegible] is expected at Christmas and New Years. As I have stated before, I [illegible] in [illegible] confident that eggs [illegible] during the winter depends [illegible] upon three things, and [illegible] is pitifully small, however [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] will [illegible] the [illegible] in those [illegible] well with suitable food and [illegible] housed and fledged. As suitable [illegible] for [illegible] I shall name, first, [illegible] what [illegible] ranges from ground [illegible] to which [illegible] the [illegible] a small proportion of [illegible] to the [illegible] portion of the [illegible] In addition to the [illegible] I would [illegible] occasionally [illegible] cabbages or other [illegible] vegetables, [illegible] pounded oyster [illegible] [illegible] by no means forgetting to [illegible] to keep the gizzard well-stocked [illegible] [illegible] by an [illegible] the model [illegible] for the production and [illegible] which [illegible] [illegible] keeper of fowls, [illegible] the onions chopped fine and fed [illegible] extent of the fowl's appetite in the [illegible] [illegible] to eat. Scald wheat at the rate of [illegible] 2000 one of dry wheat to the [illegible] fresh water, pounded oyster shells [illegible] or flint, and fresh-broken [illegible] or flint must in quantity [illegible] easy reach. In addition to such [illegible] I would be bedded down [illegible] comfort during the day in cold weather [illegible] Hay cut in early material of some kind [illegible] furnished for horses and cattle [illegible] which [illegible] changed as of [illegible] new straw daily. Hens so fed [illegible] in most [illegible] stored from the rains [illegible] room, and prepared against the cold [illegible] driving winds, will lay, and continue to lay the most the longest and coldest winter [illegible] of all. [illegible] the most unsuitable for egg [illegible] production room—for all feeding [illegible] [illegible] with which a large share of the fowls [illegible] the west are almost necessarily winter- [illegible] And it is so, by those its constituents [illegible] materials are rich in fatty matter, and so [illegible] albumen and the phosphates of [illegible] the white and shells and embrace [illegible] the most [illegible] materials.
